Master’s students in Creative Writing at Kansas State work with award-winning faculty in poetry, fiction, and creative nonfiction and prepare for careers in writing, teaching, and editing.

Students have the opportunity to work on Touchstone literary magazine, teach in our Young Writer’s Workshop, and take courses in children’s literature.

Recent graduates have won the AWP Intro Journals Project and the Wick Poetry Prize, entered top MFA programs, and published in prestigious journals.

Visit us at www.k-state.edu/english/ for more information.