LaLitamba is a journal of international writings for liberation, founded during a pilgrimage through India. In early 2004, we traveled through cities and villages, seeking to alleviate poverty, illness, and plain loss of hope. The journal was inspired by a bhajan sung each night, “Lalitamba, Lalitamba.” LaLitamba is published by Chintamani Books in New York City. Contributors range from internationally acclaimed poets, novelists, and savants to homeless wanderers, political refugees, and prison inmates. These are the mystics of our time. LaLitamba is a forum for the expression and discovery of truth. The name LaLitamba means Divine Mother.
