bioStories is an on-line nonfiction literary magazine conceived in the belief that every life can prove instructive, inspiring, or compelling, that every life contains moments of grace. bioStories features new work every week, gathers that work in semi-annual issues, and produces theme-driven anthologies. We feature artful, engaging, thoughtful essays from writers from throughout the world. Standing against a culture that obsesses over the miasmic and trivial, we publish literary-quality essays that focus on actual lives that might otherwise go overlooked and probe within the essential nature of being human.

Accepting work year-round; featuring new work every week.

“The most important thing about a person is always the thing you don’t know.”

Barbara Kingsolver, The Lacuna
