

Call for

SUBMISSIONS

Weber invites submissions in the genres of personal narrative, critical commentary, fiction, creative non-fiction, and poetry that offer insight into the environment and culture of the contemporary western United States. We seek works that speak to the preservation of and access to wilderness and environmental cooperation; insight derived from living in the West; cultural diversity; changing federal involvement in the region; women, minority populations and the West; implications of population growth; the contributions of individual scholars, artists, community leaders, and public intellectuals toward an enlarged understanding of the (both new and old) West. We look for good writing that engages human nature as well as natural environment.

poems and essays published in Weber are considered for our annual awards

→ D. Marvin Lewis Essay Award $500
Sherwin W. Howard Poetry Award $500

Email your submission to:
weberjournal@weber.edu

- Essay and fiction submissions should not exceed 4,000 words
- Poets should submit a cluster of 3-5 poems for consideration

visit us on the web

www.weber.edu/weberjournal